Division	Social Sciences
Department	The Oxford School of Global and Area Studies (OSGA)
Location	12 Bevington Road, Oxford, OX2 6LH
Grade and salary	Grade 5: £28,754- £33,966 per annum (pro rata)
Hours	Part time, variable hours (18.25 hours per week /0.5 FTE). Hybrid working hours' arrangements will be possible, with working days to include Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.
Contract type	Fixed-term for 3 months
Reporting to	Mrs Francesca Tucci, Research Development Officer
Vacancy reference	168428
Additional Information	This is a secondment opportunity for University of Oxford staff members. The post is available immediately and the successful candidate must be available to start in November 2023 or as soon as possible thereafter. *Proof of the right-to-work in the UK: This vacancy does NOT meet the Home Office requirements for a new Certificate of Sponsorship application. However, if the chosen candidate is eligible to apply for a different type of visa, the School will seek advice from the Staff Immigration Team, if they could pursue a visa route in its own right.

The role

Working closely with (and reporting to) the Research Development Officer, you will support OSGA's research and finance functions. In particular you will provide administrative support for the research ethics approval (CUREC), travel risk assessment (TRA) and insurance processes. Whilst this is not primarily a finance role, you may be required to carry out basic finance duties at busy times and to cover staff absence. It is expected that the role will develop over time while remaining within the scope of Grade 5 responsibilities.

Responsibilities/Duties

- Co-ordinate departmental CUREC and travel risk assessment/insurance processes: provide support and advice to academics and researchers about the procedures for submitting CUREC and TRA/insurance applications, manage application records, review applications, provide feedback to applicants and deal with queries.
- Provide assistance to the Research Development Officer in the preparation of grant applications.
- Provide advice on the preparation of grant applications as directed by the Research Development Officer.
- Prepare financial costings for grant applications using the University's costing tool (X5).
- Ensure that grant applications and award information are submitted to Research Services in a timely manner.
- Support the Finance Manager with some aspects of post-award management including project set-up on Oracle, report distribution, reviewing compliance with funders' terms and conditions and preparation of audit files.
- Support the finance team with basic duties such as raising requisitions and checking expense claims as required.
- Carry out any other duties commensurate with the grade as may be required.

Selection criteria

Essential

- Good general education to A-level standard or equivalent.
- Experience in an administrative support role, preferably in higher education or a similar field.
- Ability to interpret and explain complex information to others.
- Ability to work accurately with excellent attention to detail.
- Ability to work on own initiative with minimal supervision.
- Experience of working calmly under pressure and working successfully to tight deadlines.
- Ability to communicate fluently and tactfully, both orally and in writing, at all levels within the University and with external organisations.
- Excellent computer literacy and ability to learn new IT packages as required.
- Ability to work, as a member of a team that is physically dispersed across different locations.
- Enthusiastic, reliable and flexible in approach.

Desirable

- Experience of working in a Research Administration function.
- Experience of working in a university or other public sector environment.
- Experience of the University's costing and pricing tool (X5) and finance system (Oracle).

Pre-employment screening

Standard checks

If you are offered the post, the offer will be subject to standard pre-employment checks. You will be asked to provide: proof of your right-to-work in the UK; proof of your identity; and (if we haven't done so already) we will contact the referees you have nominated. You will also be asked to complete a health declaration so that you can tell us about any health conditions or disabilities for which you may need us to make appropriate adjustments.

Please read the candidate notes on the University's pre-employment screening procedures at: <https://www.jobs.ox.ac.uk/pre-employment-checks>

The Oxford School of Global and Area Studies

The School represents a commitment by the University to enhancing teaching and research in Area Studies. It brings together seven units: the African Studies Centre, the Latin American Centre (including the Brazilian Studies Programme), the Nissan Institute of Japanese Studies, the Contemporary China Studies Programme, Russian and East European Studies, the Contemporary South Asia Studies Programme and the Middle East Programme. The administration of the School is based at 12 Bevington Road, with colleagues also providing administrative support across a number of locations in which the School's constituent units are based (including the Nissan Institute of Japanese Studies at St Antony's College and the University of Oxford China Centre at St Hugh's College).

The School is devoted to research and graduate teaching in academic disciplines which attempt to understand the complexity and the interrelatedness of society through anthropology, economics, politics, history, sociology and culture. Its teaching and research seek to take into account both the insights provided by the separate disciplines and the contextualisation provided by in-depth knowledge of specific regions and countries. Interdisciplinary collaboration to study specific social processes is encouraged, and a distinctive feature of the School is the number of its academic staff who hold joint appointments in the School and a disciplinary department in the Social Sciences or Humanities Divisions. In the most recent national research quality assessment exercise (REF2021), Area Studies at Oxford – comprising staff in the School and the Faculty of Oriental Studies in the Humanities Division - was judged to account for more world-leading (4*) research than any other Area Studies department in the UK.

The School admits around 150 graduate students a year on Masters and DPhil programmes, across the African Studies Centre, Latin American Centre, the Nissan Institute of Japanese Studies, Russian and East European Studies, Contemporary South Asia, Contemporary Chinese Studies, Middle East Studies, and the comparative master's programme in Global and Area Studies. Additionally, the School's academic staff supervise doctoral students and teach on a range of undergraduate programmes in other parts of the University.

Further information about the OSGA, its component units, its staff, courses and research activities can be found on its website at www.area-studies.ox.ac.uk

The School holds a bronze Athena Swan award to recognise advancement of gender equality: representation, progression and success for all.

The Social Sciences Division

The University's academic departments and faculties are organised into four large groups known as Academic Divisions (Social Sciences, Mathematical, Physical and Life Sciences (MPLS), Medical Sciences, and Humanities). The divisions are responsible for academic strategy and operational planning, oversight of the teaching and research of their constituent departments and faculties, and for personnel and resource management. The social sciences at Oxford are distinctive for both their depth and breadth, with over 1,100 academic and research staff working across fifteen departments, faculties and schools. The Head of the Social Sciences Division is Professor Timothy Power.

The Division is a world-leading centre of research and education in the social sciences. The Times Higher Education (THE) University Rankings returned the University of Oxford to the number one spot in the world for Social Sciences in 2022. We have placed first in three of the last five years (2018, 2019 and 2022).

More than 800 researchers were returned to Main Panel C (Social Sciences) for REF 2021 across a diverse range of subject area 'units of assessment' – from geography and business to archaeology and law. Over 55% of the research submitted from the Division was judged to be world-leading (4*, the highest score available). More than two-thirds (69%) of the research's impact was also recognised as world-leading (4*). Research from across the Division was also submitted to subject areas across Panels A (Medicine, health and life sciences), B (Physical sciences, engineering and mathematics), and D (Arts and Humanities), highlighting the enormous breadth and diversity of research expertise across the Division.

Our academic and research staff and students are international thought leaders, generating new evidence, insights and policy tools with which to address some of the major global challenges facing humanity, such as sustainable resource management, poverty and forced migration, effective governance and justice. Particular research highlights in recent years have included COVID-19 and Climate Change. As well as active interdisciplinary links with researchers in other divisions at Oxford, we engage and collaborate extensively with other universities and a wide range of governmental and non-governmental practitioner communities such as law, business, public health and welfare, international development and education around the world. The Division has an extensive portfolio of external funders, partners and supporters, with competitively-awarded external research income exceeding £50million per year and philanthropic income over £25 million a year.

As part of our commitment to equality of opportunity, eleven of our departments have achieved Bronze awards under the Athena Swan Charter (a UK accreditation scheme recognising organisations' commitment to equality and diversity, particularly in gender). Our School of Geography and the Environment holds an Athena Swan Silver award. In February 2023, for the first time, the University as a whole was awarded an institutional Athena Swan Silver award, acknowledging the progress that has been made in addressing a number of gender gaps across the University over the last five years.

The Division delivers an exceptional range of high-quality educational programmes all underpinned by the innovative research being undertaken by our academics. The student body is made up of over 2,000 undergraduate students, nearly 3,000 students studying postgraduate taught programmes and 1,200 postgraduate research students. The programmes we offer are wide-ranging, often interdisciplinary and include professionally-oriented provision in areas such as business, law and education. The Division is home to several of Oxford's most widely recognised teaching programmes, such as Philosophy, Politics and Economics (PPE) at undergraduate level; and at the Masters level programmes such as the Bachelor in Civil Law (BCL), Environmental Change and Management, International Relations, and Social Data Science.

About the University of Oxford

Oxford's departments and colleges aim to lead the world in research and education for the benefit of society both in the UK and globally. Oxford's researchers engage with academic, commercial and cultural partners across the world to stimulate high-quality research and enable innovation through a broad range of social, policy and economic impacts.

Oxford's self-governing community of international scholars includes Professors, Associate Professors, other college tutors, senior and junior research fellows and a large number University research staff. Research at Oxford combines disciplinary depth with an increasing focus on inter-disciplinary and multi-disciplinary activities addressing a rich and diverse range of issues.

Oxford's strengths lie both in empowering individuals and teams to address fundamental questions of global significance, and in providing all staff with a welcoming and inclusive workplace that supports everyone to develop and do their best work. Recognising that diversity is a great strength, and vital for innovation and creativity, Oxford aspires to build a truly inclusive community which values and respects every individual's unique contribution.

While Oxford has long traditions of scholarship, it is also forward-looking, creative and cutting-edge. Oxford is one of Europe's most entrepreneurial universities. It consistently has the highest external research income of any university in the UK (the most recent figures are available at www.ox.ac.uk/about/organisation/finance-and-funding), and regularly creates spinout companies based on academic research generated within and owned by the University. Oxford is also recognised as a leading supporter of social enterprise.

Oxford admits undergraduate students with the intellectual potential to benefit fully from the small group learning to which Oxford is deeply committed. Meeting in small groups with their tutor, undergraduates are exposed to rigorous scholarly challenge and learn to develop their critical thinking, their ability to articulate their views with clarity, and their personal and intellectual confidence. They receive a high level of personal attention from leading academics.

Oxford has a strong postgraduate student body, who are attracted to Oxford by the international standing of the faculty, by the rigorous intellectual training on offer, by the excellent research and laboratory facilities available, and by the resources of the museums and libraries, including one of the world's greatest libraries, the Bodleian.
