Job description

Overview of the role

As part of the team at the Ashmolean Museum, University of Oxford, the successful candidate will contribute significantly to the Roman Provincial Coinage online project. Their primary tasks will include translating and editing Greek and Latin inscriptions for a diverse audience and encoding these inscriptions in EpiDoc format to facilitate academic research by epigraphists and papyrologists. This role is key to expanding the accessibility and scholarly depth of the RPC online database, maintaining its standing as a unvaluable resource in the field.

Responsibilities

- Edit and translate all the Greek and Latin inscriptions, assisted by AI, ensuring accuracy and scholarly quality.
- Encode the edited inscriptions in the XML/EpiDoc format, with the support of AI for initial drafts, subject to thorough review and refinement.
- Conduct in-depth reviews to maintain the quality of epigraphic data, focusing on the linguistic nuances of Greek and Latin.
- Improve the project's data quality through expert knowledge of Greek and Latin onomastics and epigraphy, such as adding links to specific epigraphy and prosopography online databases.
- Implement various data improvement initiatives to continuously enhance the quality and depth of the project's data.

Other duties

- Participate in regular project review meetings.
- Undertake any necessary training identified.
- Comply with health and safety regulations.
- Comply with the policies and procedures set out in the Handbook for University Support Staff/Academic Related Staff.
- Any other duties that may be required from time to time commensurate with the grade of the job.

The Ashmolean Museum reserves the right to make reasonable amendments to the job description in consultation with the post-holder at any time.

Roman Provincial Coinage Online

The Roman Provincial Coinage project embodies a new conception of Roman coinage. It presents for the first time an authoritative account of the coins minted in the provinces of the empire and shows how they can be regarded as an integral part of the coinage minted under the Roman emperors. The aim of this series is to produce a standard typology of the provincial coinage of the Roman Empire. This represents the first systematic treatment of the civic coinage at the height of the Roman empire. The online publication is based in the Ashmolean Museum, University of Oxford.

Selection Criteria

Essential criteria

- Advanced proficiency in Greek and Latin, with emphasis on accurate translation and understanding of accentuation and grammatical structures.
- Specialised knowledge and experience in Greek and Latin epigraphy, demonstrating deep understanding and expertise in the field.
- Strong knowledge in onomastics within the Roman historical and epigraphical context, essential for accurate interpretation and translation of inscriptions.
- Familiarity with the history of Roman emperors, including their reigns, imperial titles and full names, to provide context to the inscriptions.
- Experience in XML/EpiDoc encoding or willingness to rapidly acquire this skill, crucial for the digital representation of inscriptions.
- A strong interest in engaging with digital humanities tools and AI tools, showing an aptitude for adapting to new technologies and methodologies within the research field.
- Ability to conduct meticulous and independent scholarly work, essential for the editing and translating responsibilities, coupled with a rigorous work ethic and meticulous attention to detail in research and data handling.
- High level of proficiency in English, necessary for accurately conveying complex epigraphic and historical information.
- Excellent communication skills and a proven ability to foster positive and productive working relationships, essential for effective collaboration within the team.
- Demonstrates flexibility and adaptability in a dynamic research environment, with a willingness to engage in continuous learning and skill development.

Desirable criteria

- A postgraduate qualification in Classics, Ancient History, or a related field, with a focus on Greek and Latin epigraphy or linguistics.
- Knowledge of the SQL language would be very beneficial for querying independently the database.
- Demonstrable interest in Greek and Roman numismatics, offering additional perspective to the project.
- Familiarity with additional alphabets and basic concepts of languages like Phoenician and Neo-Punic is beneficial.

The Ashmolean Museum

Who we are:

Gardens, Libraries and Museums (GLAM)

The Gardens, Libraries and Museums (GLAM) group includes the providers of the major academic services to the divisions, and also departments with responsibilities including, but extending beyond, the immediate teaching and research needs of the University. The collections embodied within these departments are an essential part of the University's wider nature and mission. They are part of its heritage as the country's oldest University and now form a resource of national and international importance for teaching, research and cultural life; they also make a major contribution to the University's outreach and access missions.

How to apply

Applications are made through our e-recruitment system and you will find all the information you need about how to apply on our Jobs website <https://www.jobs.ox.ac.uk/how-to-apply>

Your application will be judged solely on the basis of how you demonstrate that you meet the selection criteria stated in the job description.

As part of your application you will be asked to provide details of two referees and indicate whether we can contact them now.

You will be asked to upload a CV and a supporting statement. The supporting statement must explain how you meet each of the selection criteria for the post using examples of your skills and experience. This may include experience gained in employment, education, or during career breaks (such as time out to care for dependants).

All applications must be received by midday UK time on the closing date stated in the online advertisement.

Supporting Statement

Please note that if you do not upload a completed supporting statement and a CV, we will be unable to consider your application for this role.

The inclusion of the supporting statement and CV is a mandatory step in the online application process.

Your application will be judged solely on the basis of how you demonstrate that you meet the selection criteria stated in the job description in your supporting statement.

All applications must be received by 12:00 midday (GMT/BST) on the closing date stated in the online advertisement.

References

Please give the details of two people who have agreed to provide a reference for you. If you have previously been employed, your referees should be people who have managed you for a considerable period, and at least one of them should be your formal line manager in your most recent job. Otherwise they may be people who have supervised you in a recent college, school, or voluntary experience. It is helpful if you can tell us briefly how each referee knows you (e.g. 'line manager', 'college tutor'). Your referees should not be related to you.

Your referees will be asked to comment on your suitability for the post and to provide details of the dates of your employment; and of any disciplinary processes which are still considered 'live'. We will only take up references at offer stage.

Information for priority candidates

A priority candidate is a University employee who is seeking redeployment because they have been advised that they are at risk of redundancy, or on grounds of ill-health/disability. Priority candidates are issued with a redeployment letter by their employing department(s).

If you are a priority candidate, please ensure that you attach your redeployment letter to your application (or email it to the contact address on the advert if the application form used for the vacancy does not allow attachments).
