The role

The Department of Physics is a key collaborator in a large number of international programmes and projects to develop novel and cutting-edge instrumentation and other outputs requiring high level, professional, programme and project management to support the academic mission. Working closely with a portfolio of external programme collaborators (including [NASA, ESA, ATC, ESO, others]), the post holder will be responsible for delivering the strategic and operational lead on the department's large scale technical projects and will work with a large number of academic and technical services stakeholders to ensure timely delivery and success.

The post holder plays a leading role in the management of a portfolio of internationally important programmes and has responsibility for the development of their strategic direction. A recognised authority in their field, the post holder supports programme and project management across a breadth of research groups, delegating ongoing responsibilities, contributing to the overarching vision and managing staff performance.

Responsibilities

- Provide overall management of Oxford Physics' space instrumentation development programme and the Infrared Multilayer Laboratory.
- Initiate and implement long-term programme management of (often interdisciplinary) research programmes
- Develop and implement a common operational framework for major technical project support, including a robust system of documentation, review and sign-off, using industry norms and comprehensive quality assurance.
- Ensure legal, regulatory and statutory compliance for project and programme management and product certification, as applicable
- Manage substantial research resources and budgets
- Act as the local expert in technical project management matters and provide professional help and guidance to others, as appropriate.
- Generate research income and actively promote the research area. Contribute to technical and programme management areas of funding applications for new projects, and play a key role in establishing overall research strategy
- Promote the research groups locally and nationally, disseminate research outcomes to advance knowledge in the specialist area; represent the research group at external meetings/seminars and liaise with sponsors, stakeholders, national agencies, and professional bodies
- Contribute to the policy making of external agencies
- Carry out collaborative projects with colleagues in partner institutions and research groups
- Chair committees and/or working groups
- Establish strong working relationships with other project and programme management groups institutionally and elsewhere (such as with National Laboratories within the UK and their international equivalents)
- Provide management

Pre-employment screening

All offers of employment are made subject to standard pre-employment screening, as applicable to the post.

If you are offered the post, you will be asked to provide proof of your right-to-work, your identity, and we will contact the referees you have nominated. You will also be asked to complete a health declaration (so that you can tell us about any health conditions or disabilities so that we can discuss appropriate adjustments with you), and a declaration of any unspent criminal convictions.

We advise all applicants to read the candidate notes on the University's pre-employment screening procedures, found at: www.ox.ac.uk/about/jobs/preemploymentscreening/.

About the University of Oxford

Welcome to the University of Oxford. We aim to lead the world in research and education for the benefit of society both in the UK and globally. Oxford's researchers engage with academic, commercial and cultural partners across the world to stimulate high-quality research and enable innovation through a broad range of social, policy and economic impacts.

We believe our strengths lie both in empowering individuals and teams to address fundamental questions of global significance, while providing all our staff with a welcoming and inclusive workplace that enables everyone to develop and do their best work. Recognising that diversity is our strength, vital for innovation and creativity, we aspire to build a truly diverse community which values and respects every individual's unique contribution.

While we have long traditions of scholarship, we are also forward-looking, creative and cutting-edge. Oxford is one of Europe's most entrepreneurial universities. Income from external research contracts in 2016/17 exceeded £564m and we rank first in the UK for university spin-outs, with more than 130 companies created to date. We are also recognised as leaders in support for social enterprise.

Join us and you will find a unique, democratic and international community, a great range of staff benefits and access to a vibrant array of cultural activities in the beautiful city of Oxford.

Department of Physics

Oxford Physics is one of the largest and most eminent departments in Europe – pursuing forefront research alongside training the next generation of leaders in Physics.

With an academic staff of almost one hundred our activities range from fundamental particles to the furthest reaches of the universe to manipulating matter on an atomic scale. Oxford physicists are probing new ways to harness solar energy, modelling the Earth's atmosphere to predict the future climate, exploring computation on the quantum scale and executing calculations that reveal the fundamental structure of space and time.

Atmospheric, Ocean and Planetary Physics Sub-department

The post-holder will be based in the AOPP sub-department, which is one of the six sub-departments that together make up the Department of Physics; these are Astrophysics, Atomic and Laser Physics, Atmospheric, Oceanic and Planetary Physics, Condensed Matter Physics, Particle Physics and Theoretical Physics, with a seventh function (Central Physics) providing administrative and technical support to these sub-departments. Members of all sub-departments take part in research, teaching and matters such as examinations, discussion of syllabi, lectures and liaison with undergraduates and postgraduate students.

Mathematical, Physical & Life Sciences Division

The Mathematical, Physical and Life Sciences (MPLS) Division is one of the four academic divisions of the University of Oxford.

The MPLS Division's 10 departments and 3 interdisciplinary units span the full spectrum of the mathematical, computational, physical, engineering and life sciences, and undertake both fundamental research and cutting-edge applied work. Our research addresses major societal and technological challenges and is increasingly focused on key interdisciplinary issues. We collaborate closely with colleagues in Oxford across the medical sciences, social sciences and humanities, and with other universities, research organisations and industrial partners across the globe in pursuit of innovative research geared to address critical and fundamental scientific questions.

For more information please visit: <http://www.mpls.ox.ac.uk/>

Athena Swan Charter

The Department of Physics holds a silver Athena Swan award to recognise advancement of gender equality: representation, progression and success for all.
