- Proficiency with programming in MATLAB (preferred) or Python
- Possess sufficient knowledge of neuroscience and neuroimaging to understand the project questions and objectives
- Experience of computational modelling and statistical data analysis
- Ability to manage own research and administrative activities
- Excellent communication skills, including the ability to write text and make figures and diagrams that can be published, present data at conferences, and represent the research group at meetings
- Ability to work well as part of a team

Desirable selection criteria

- Experience of working with functional MRI or brain tractography data
- Experience working on brain modelling
- Experience of working with computer clusters
- Experience of contributing to research publications
- Experience of working in a research team and contributing ideas for new research projects
- Master's degree in neuroscience, data science, computer science, or engineering

Pre-employment screening

Standard checks

If you are offered the post, the offer will be subject to standard pre-employment checks. You will be asked to provide: proof of your right-to-work in the UK; proof of your identity; and (if we haven't done so already) we will contact the referees you have nominated. If you have previously worked for the University we will also verify key information such as your dates of employment and reason for leaving your previous role with the department/unit where you worked. You will also be asked to complete a health declaration so that you can tell us about any health conditions or disabilities for which you may need us to make appropriate adjustments.

Please read the candidate notes on the University's pre-employment screening procedures at:
